THE UNIVERSITY

If Hinton James had ridden his horse from Wilmington to enroll at the University of North Carolina this fall, Old Nellie would probably have come to a quick stop at the Chapel Hill city limits while the rider asked what had happened.

James made that long ride from the coast in 1795 to enroll as the first student at UNC. That was quite a different era. George Washington was president and UNC was nothing more than an impoverished little school of classical studies on a wooded hill named for a chapel called New Hope. It was the only state university in the nation then.

James and his 40 classmates were taught by two professors in a single building. Since then, the campus has literally exploded. Today the University sprawls over many acres and high rise buildings—like the 10-story Hinton James dormitory named for the first student—break the Chapel Hill skyline.

But 173 years of planning has created a campus considered one of the most beautiful anywhere. Hinton James found walks through the Carolina forests conducive to his academic life. Today, Carolina students still find plenty of tree-lined paths leading to a refuge from the classroom.

North Carolina has earned the reputation of being the most progressive and liberal of southern states, and Chapel Hill has long been known asthe state's most liberal town. Pretenses have no support here. Negro women line main street and sell flowers from beneath shade trees. Novelists and artists engage in lively debate with restauranteurs and the town's leading mechanic may appear more successful than the banker he is talking to in front of the post office. And it is a town many retire to.

The Morehead Planetarium on the campus has trained all of the astronauts and research being conducted all over the campus is reaching for the future. An integral part of the University is vast medical complex which includes N.C. Memorial Hospital and trains many of the state's doctors, dentists and public health experts.

Thirty-one of North Carolina's 50 governors have been graduates of the University at Chapel Hill and one president—James K. Polk of his class of 1818—went on to become president.

Carolina is one of the three southern schools which rank at the top of southern Universities in a comprehensive study conducted by the American Council on Education, and most scholars from other colleges and universities in the south choose UNC when awarded by the Southern Fellowship Fund.

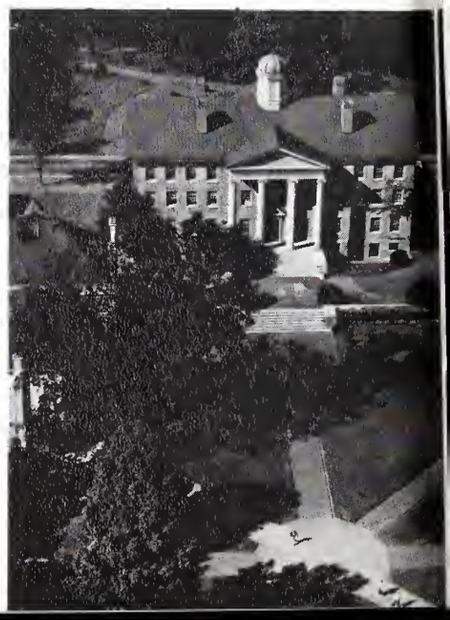
The arts have an active home in Chapel Hill and most of the 16,000 students this year will have some contact with a concert, art exhibition, play, or lecture.

Chapel Hill is a literary haven. Thomas Wolfe, Paul Green and LeGette Blythe have all found adventure and beauty on the campus. The other well-known graduates are too numerous to list. Perhaps the most famous name associated with the faculty is Kay Kyser, the original "Professor of Musical Knowledge" on radio.

It is a cosmopolitan little town despite its sleepy appearance. Of a full-time faculty of more than 1,100, more than half are natives of states other than North Carolina. All 50 states are represented in the student body as well as many foreign countries.

The Tar Heel brand is well-known in athletics. Carolina won its first national championship in basketball in 1924 with a 23-0 record and did it again in 1957, this time with a 32-0 record. The team has finished in the top four in the nation for the past three years. Jim Beatty, a Tar Heel trackman of the 1950's, was the first American to break the four-minute mile barrier.

Hinton James would be surprised. The campus of today would not be recognizable to him. But a serene, gentle way of life which has always hung heavy in the Chapel Hill air has not changed since 1795. The striving for excellence in the hearts and mind of the University has not changed. And the giant poplar tree where James thought away spring afternoons is still there, offering a resting place for yet another generation of young men and women.



The Chancellor and Mrs. Sitterson

The Chancellor

A follower of Tar Heel sports since his undergraduate days here in 1927, Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson speaks knowingly of athletics as well as of academics.

"Chancellor Sitterson is a great fan," says Coach Dean Smith, "and we certainly appreciate the support he has given our team."

All athletic teams at Carolina are, indeed, fortunate in having Chancellor Sitterson on their side. The busy and often frantic schedule of being Chancellor of one of America's great Universities does not interfere with his attendance at the major sports events on campus.

The Chancellor not only turns out for the big football games on Saturday afternoon. He watches many of the practice sessions. Last year on the eve of several big games, Dooley asked him to speak to the players and Chancellor Sitterson gave them a fighting pep talk.

Chancellor Sitterson has an approach to college athletics that is basic and understandable. "I look at our athletic department in the same manner I might look at our English or history department," he says. "I expect a certain amount of excellence. Athletics on the college level should be administered properly and above reproach. Out coaches are highly capable men. Out teams should perform accordingly."

This is Chancellor Sitterson's 43rd year on the Carolina campus. In 1927, he enrolled here as a student. He became the No. 1 man on the campus on May 9, 1966 when he was appointed to head the University.

Dr. Sitterson was a member of Phi Beta Kappa when he was a student here from 1927 until 1931. He received the M.A. degree here in 1932 and the PhD. degree in 1937. He has been a member of the University faculty since 1935.

Chancellor Sitterson's accomplishments in the field of education are many and varied. He is listed in: Who's Who in America; Who's Who in the South; Who Knows What; and the Directory of American Scholars.

He has recently received the Doctor of Literature degree from the University of Chattanooga and the Doctor of Laws degree from Vanderbilt University.

Dr. Sitterson is Chairman of the Planning Committee of the National Association of Allergies and Infectious Disease Council, National Institute of Health, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He is an enthusiastic and inspiring teacher. In 1954, the campus literary magazine, the Carolina Quarterly, identified him as one of the "Ten Outstanding Professors" as adjudged by students in the University.

He was elected by his colleagues to be Chairman of the American Conference of Academic Deans in the years 1964 and 1965. It is one of the highest academic offices that can be held by a scholar and administrator in higher education in the United States.

The American Conference of Academic Deans is composed of liberal arts and sciences administrators in the rank of dean, with representation from more than 500 of the leading colleges and Universities in the Association of American Colleges.

Dr. Sitterson was chosen in 1958 to be one of the 35 deans from throughout the nation to attend the Harvard University Institute for College and University Administrators, participating in a week-long discussion on faculty recruitment, faculty promotion, curriculum planning, budget policy and the decision-making functions of the academic dean.

Chancellor Sitterson formerly was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and Dean of the General College here. He served in those capacities until 1965 when he was made Vice Chancellor of the University with authority over all the central campus, and also the schools in the Health Affairs area which includes Medical School, Dentistry, Nursing, Pharmacy and Public Health.

HOMER RICE

Homer Rice nears the end of his first year as Director of Athletics at the University of North Carolina with the same philosophy he brought to the job—"to strive for excellence."

Rice aimed to begin fulfilling a pledge "to have a program that students, faculty and alumni could be proud of" from the day he accepted the position at the top of Carolina athletics. His first nine months on the job convinced all observers that he meant to live by his words.

Rice, 42, is the third man to head the Carolina athletic program in 47 years. The late Coach Bob Fetzer was the first Tar Heel athletic director, serving from 1922 until 1951, and he was succeeded by Charles P. (Chuck) Erickson, who held the position until his retirement in May, 1968.

Rice came to the Tar Heels from the University of Cincinnati where the past two seasons he served as head football coach, capping an outstanding 18-year coaching career in high school and collegiate ranks.

The new athletic director has made a legion of friends in North Carolina in his first seven months on the job. Newsmen have hailed Carolina's choice and Tar Heels everywhere have rallied to Rice's cause.

Rice rolled up his sleeves and went to work here the same day he was appointed to the post. He listed a five-point philosophy which he says has contributed to his success and rapid rise in sports:

1. Decide upon an objective—where you're going and what you want to be.
2. Decide how the task can be accomplished.
3. Set a target date.
4. Visualize the objective.
5. Believe in your method of achievement.

A native of Ft. Thomas, Ky., Rice is the son of a Methodist minister.

After serving with the Navy in the Pacific during World War II, he attended school at Centre College and made the Little All-America team as a quarterback with the football team. He received an A.B. degree from Centre College and was awarded B.S. and M.E. degrees at Eastern Kentucky State College.

Following his graduation from college, Rice played three years of professional baseball in the old Brooklyn Dodger chain. Then he launched his career as a football coach.

He first coached at Wartburg Central High School in Tennessee in 1951 and his first team there compiled a perfect 10-0 record. He coached at Spring City High in Tennessee in 1952 and 1953, winning 20, losing only one and tying one.

Next came an eight-year stint at Highlands High at Ft. Thomas, Ky., and Rice's teams there won 71, lost only eight and tied six. In 1961, he received a national award as the "Winningest Football Coach in America." His overall high school record was 101 wins, nine losses and seven ties.

Rice joined the University of Kentucky staff as head offensive coach in 1962 and spent four seasons there. Under his direction, the Kentucky team of 1965 finished first in the tough Southeastern Conference in total offense.

He served one year as head offensive coach at the University of Oklahoma in 1966 and the Sooners that year set Big Eight passing percentage records. Then he was named the head coach at the University of Cincinnati. In the midst of a big rebuilding program, his Cincinnati team of 1968 won five, lost four and tied one, the Bearcats' first winning season in several years.

That 1968 Cincinnati team was so explosive that it led the nation in pass offense, averaging 335.8 yards a game in the air. This was the second highest mark in National Collegiate Athletic Association history.

Rice has authored two books on football. The first "How To Organize Football Practice" was published in 1962 and the other "The Explosive Short-T" was published in 1963.

The new Tar Heel chief is regarded as one of the finest public speakers in college athletics. He has made more than 175 lectures at coaching clinics in the south, east and west coast. A Methodist Lay speaker, he is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Rice is married to the former Phyllis Wardrup, a native of Middlesboro, Ky., and an alumna of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Her brother Leo earned Phi Beta Kappa honors at Carolina.

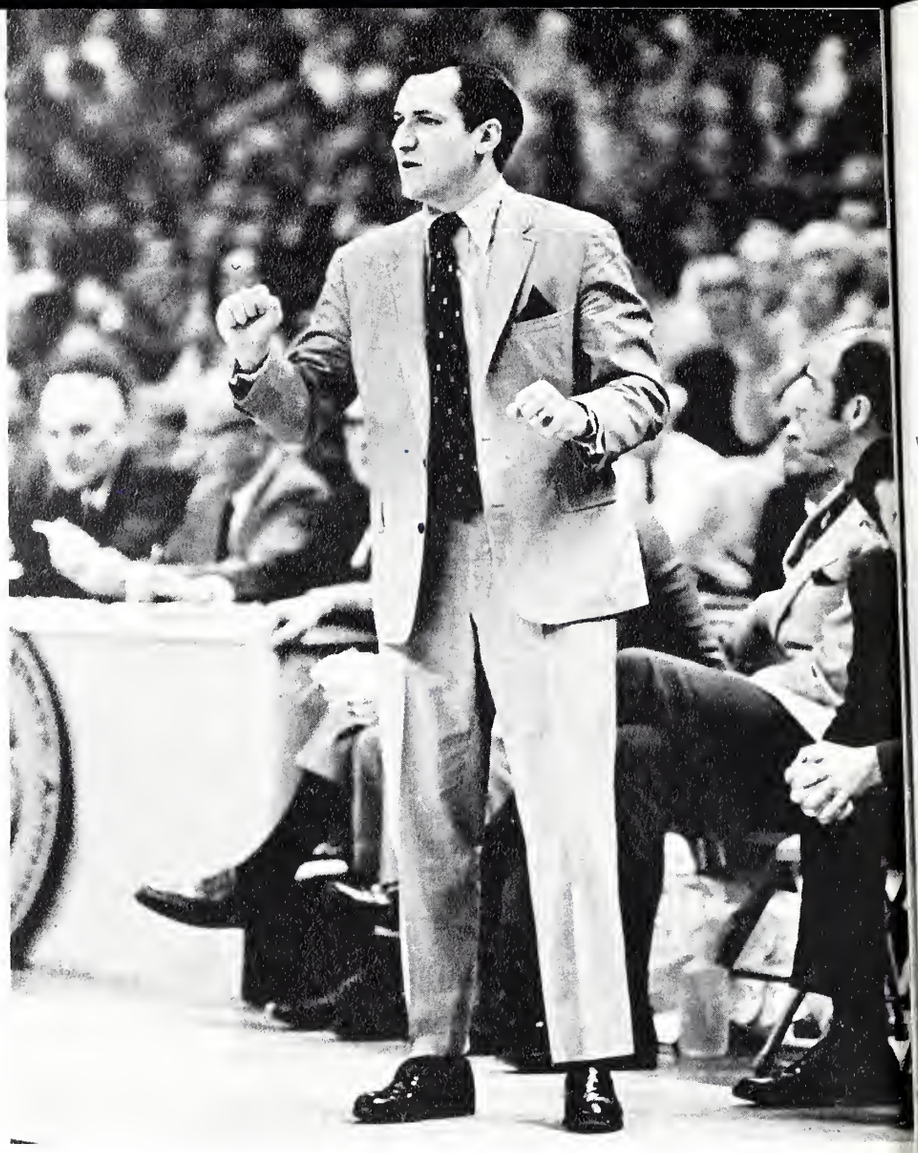
MacNELLY



Dean Smith

The most successful young coach in college basketball! That's the tag which has been earned the hard way by 38-year-old Dean Smith of the North Carolina Tar Heels.

When his team of last season won an unprecedented third straight Atlantic Coast Conference and Eastern championship, it capped eight years of blood, sweat and tears for the men in Carolina blue.

History has a way of distorting the facts, but the truth is that Smith inherited a sagging basketball program when he took the Carolina head job in 1962. The Tar Heels were stymied by penalties that year which limited the team to a 16-game schedule and placed serious restrictions on recruiting outside the state of North Carolina.

Smith rolled up his sleeves, went to work and somehow overcame all the problems. Through his shrewd planning and organizational ability, Carolina fought its way back to the top. He recruited such standout players as Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Charlie Scott.

And he won!

In the last three years alone, Smith teams have won 81 games while losing only 15. That's a winning percentage of .843 and not even the Mets, with their Divine guidance, can match that figure.

Overall, in his eight-year coaching career at Carolina, Smith has scored 147 victories and lost only 60. Every team except his first posted a winning record.

His 1967 and 1969 teams finished fourth in the nation while his 1968 team went all the way to finals before bowing to UCLA and Lew Alcindor. All three of those Carolina teams were ranked in the top four in the nation in final polls.

Smith was chosen by sportswriters and sportscasters as Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year in both 1967 and 1968. He finished third in 1968 and fifth last year in the balloting for a similar national honor.

Dean Smith came all the way from Kansas to gain national fame in the little town of Chapel Hill. A native of Emporia, Kans., he attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played frosh football and varsity basketball and baseball there and excelled in all three sports.

Dean was an assistant coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when Frank McGuire brought him to Carolina as his assistant. When McGuire left the Tar Heels in 1961 to join the professional ranks, Smith was named the head coach.

He credits four men with helping to mold his coaching philosophy. They are Dr. Phog Allen, under whom he played at Kansas; Dick Harp, also of Kansas; Frank McGuire, who brought him to Chapel Hill; and Bob Spear, under whom he worked as an assistant at the Air Force Academy.

Basketball is the main part of Dean Smith's life, but actually his interests are varied. First of all, there is his family, a lovely wife, Ann, and three children, Sharon, 14, Sandra, 13, and Scott, 11.

The coach is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He serves as a member of the National Board of Directors of that organization.

Smith has developed a keen interest in theology and reads every book he can find on the subject. He often takes time out from his hectic basketball schedule to have lunch with religion professors on campus and he finds their conversation stimulating.

A Third Straight ACC Title Celebration for Smith and His Tar Heels.

In his spare time, Smith plays golf and tennis, spins records and reads books. He is a fine golfer and can shoot in the high 70s without much practice. He doesn't play tennis as often as he does golf, but he's competitive in the sport. Even in a friendly golf or tennis match, his competitive spirit shows. He hates to lose.

His musical preference is jazz. He spins records by Nancy Wilson and June Christy on his car phonograph and always turns up the speaker when he comes to a part he particularly likes.

That car phonograph (and the car) are a present of admiring Carolina fans. After the 1968 season when Carolina won its second straight ACC and Eastern title, Tar Heel fans presented the coach with a Carolina blue Cadillac. He drives it with pride.

But basketball is the real thing. Make no mistake about that. Smith lives the game. Last summer when he and his family vacationed for a week at a North Carolina beach, the coach took along his film and projector. After the family went to bed at night, Smith looked at the film of Carolina games.

In just eight years, Smith has become one of the game's leading spokesmen. He is in great demand at clinics across the country and attended more than 20 different sessions during the past year. He makes many other speaking engagements each year. He's an excellent and witty public speaker.

He is a member of the National Basketball Rules Committee, the youngest man ever named to that group. The Coach recently completed a series of films on offensive basketball in connection with Sports Illustrated, the Ealing Corporation and the NCAA Film Service. This film will be shown at schools throughout the country.

His own basketball school at Carolina each summer is a booming success. It has attracted capacity enrollment each year since he has been the head coach.

He currently is working on his first book on basketball. He has been writing the book for five years and insiders say it will be one of the most popular books of its kind ever written.

Smith is very close to his players and continues his relationship with them long after they have graduated. Almost daily, you can spot a former player, many of them now professional stars, in his office chatting.

One more thing about Dean Smith. He's a real Carolina man. He is a great fan of Carolina football and pulls hard for the teams in other sports. He inquires regularly about the batting averages of baseball players and the feats of Tar Heel trackmen.

But basketball is his sport. And he's Mr. Basketball in our town.

John Lotz

John Lotz is a winner and he has the record to prove it. In his four years as an assistant coach on the Carolina basketball staff, the Tar Heels have scored 87 victories while losing only 26 times.

One of the most popular members of the Carolina athletic family, Lotz is set to start his fifth season with the same enthusiasm which has marked his entire career. He and Bill Guthridge will be co-assistants under Dean Smith.

"John is one of the brightest young coaches in the game," says Smith. "I think I have the finest assistant coaches of any school in the country."

Carolina teams in recent years have demonstrated fine marksmanship, finishing near the top in the nation in field goal percentage. Much of the credit for this fine shooting goes to Lotz. He is an expert teacher of shooting technique and spends a large part of his time at daily practices working individually with members of the squad.

The 34-year-old Lotz was a shooting whiz himself when he played basketball at East Texas State. He also attended Baylor University, but did not play basketball there.

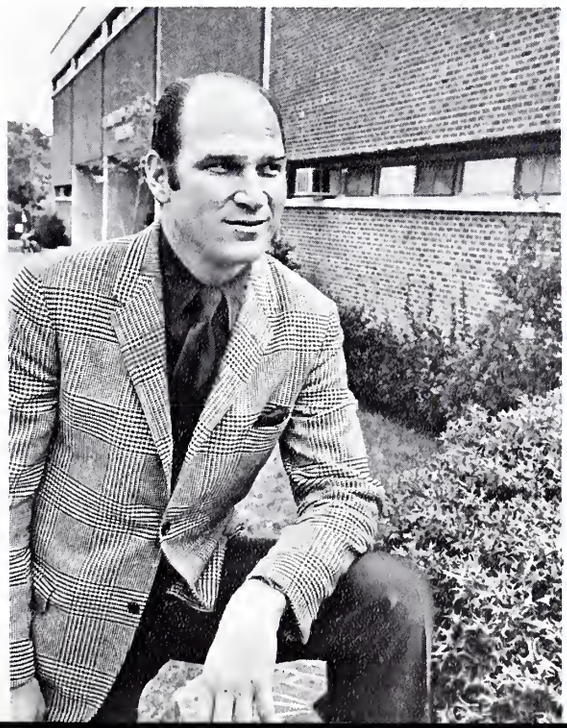
A native of New York City, John began his coaching career at a high school in Norwich, N.Y. His team there won 15 games after having won only one the previous year. The next year, Lotz moved to a new high school in Long Island, Massapequa. The first senior class there won the South Shore Championship under Lotz's direction.

John spends a good deal of his time recruiting. He ranks as one of the finest in the country in this department.

Lotz has a wide reputation as a goodwill ambassador of the University. In August, he went to Meridian, Miss., and took part in a telethon to raise money for the homeless victims of Hurricane Camille. He appeared on that telethon along with many show business personalities such as Bob Hope and little Eddie Hodges.

Lotz is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and makes numerous speeches to groups in that organization around the nation.

A bachelor, John is the brother of Danny Lotz, former Tar Heel basketballer who played on the 1957 National Championship team.



Bill Guthridge

It seems that everything Bill Guthridge touches turns to gold. In two seasons as Carolina assistant coach, he has helped guide the Tar Heels to Atlantic Coast Conference and Eastern championships and his freshman teams have swept two Big Four titles.

Guthridge has an amazing record as coach of the Carolina freshman team. His two-year record is 28 wins and only six defeats. He won the crown in 1968 with a squad which had only three scholarship players.

The 31-year-old Guthridge will coach the freshman team again this year and will continue his work as co-assistant coach of the varsity along with John Lotz.

Guthridge was brought to Carolina by Coach Dean Smith when Larry Brown left the staff to play pro basketball. A native of Parsons, Kans., Bill played for Kansas State during the years it reigned as Big Eight champion—1958, 1959 and 1960. He was a starting guard.

Following his graduation in 1960, he coached for two years at Scott City High in Kansas and then returned to his alma mater as assistant to the famed Tex Winter.

During Guthridge's time on the Kansas State staff, the Wildcats won 93 games and lost only 43. Four years ago, they advanced to the NCAA semifinals.

The summer before he came to Carolina, Bill coached an AAU team in Puerto Rico. He was invited to coach the Puerto Rican team in the 1968 Olympic Games but had to turn down the offer because of the pressure of his work here.

Guthridge was asked recently to write a book on basketball. He is considering the offer which was made by The Parker Publishing Company.

Smith rates Guthridge as one of the country's top young coaches. "I recognized long ago that Bill has an outstanding basketball mind," Smith says. "He's a winner and we're certainly happy to have him on our side."

Guthridge was married in October of this year to the former Leesie McWhorter.

John Lacey

Winning basketball teams and the work of athletic trainer John Lacey have been synonomous at the University of North Carolina since Lacey came to Chapel Hill 14 years ago.

It was shortly after Lacey came to Carolina that the Tar Heels won the National Basketball championship in 1957. And, of course, Lacey has been trainer of the last three Tar Heel teams, all of which have gone to the National Finals.

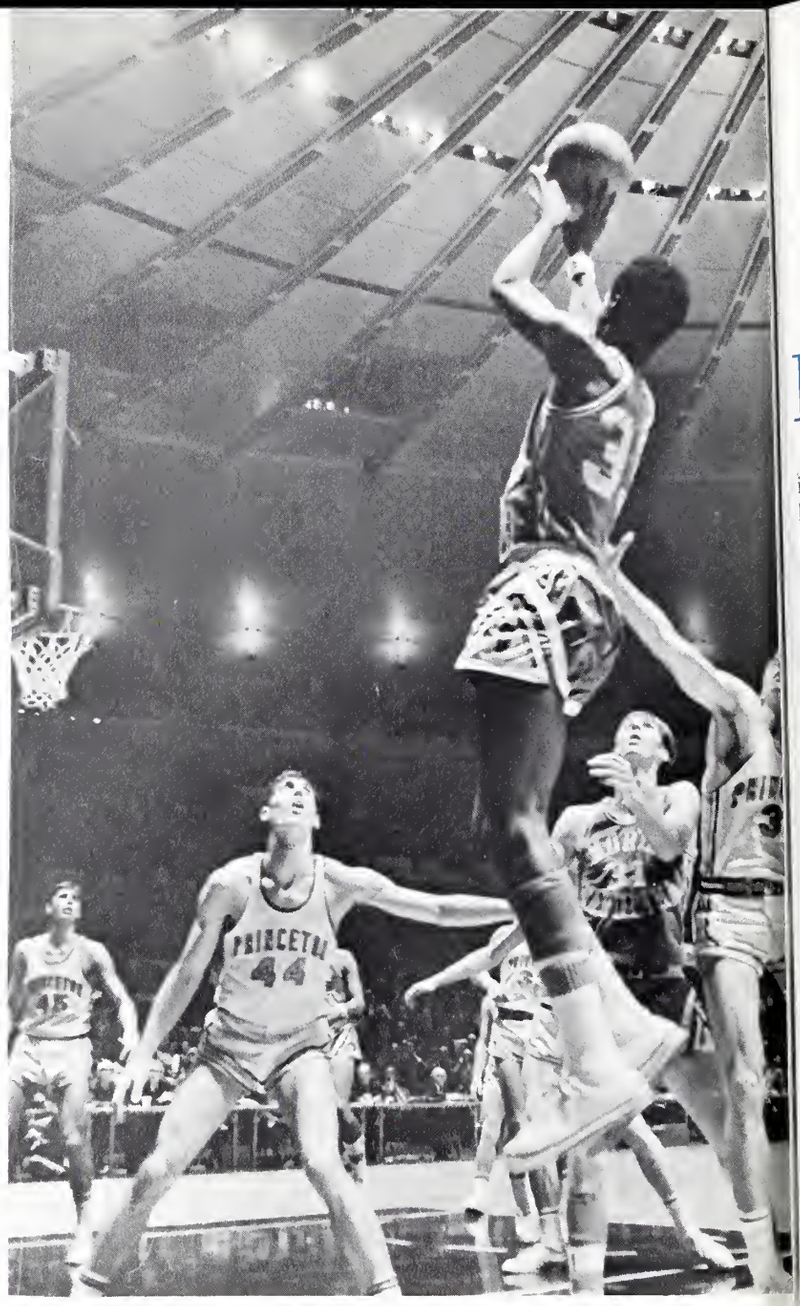
John was introduced to Carolina sports by the late Jim Tatum, who worked with Lacey at the University of Maryland. While he was at Maryland, the Terps won national championships in football and lacrosse.

Lacey trained two Maryland football teams which went to the Orange Bowl and one which played in the Sugar Bowl. At UNC, he worked with the 1963 team which beat the Air Force in the Gator Bowl.

During his career, Lacey has worked for three professional teams: the Chicago Rockets, the Baltimore Colts, and the New York Yankees. He also served as head trainer for the U.S. Olympic basketball champions in the 1964 games in Tokyo.

John attended high school in his hometown of Wallingford, Conn. and prepped at Tifton Academy in New York and at the Junior College of Therapy at New Haven. He also was a student in the Yale University Department of Health.

Lacey is married to the former Barbara Koch of Wallingford.



Scott fires against Princeton in Garden.

PRESS, RADIO AND TELEVISION INFORMATION

Press coverage of Carolina basketball is among the largest to be found anywhere in the country.

More than 45 radio stations in three states will carry the Tar Heel Basketball Network during the coming season. Bill Currie, The Mouth of the South who is sports director of WSOC-TV in Charlotte, will handle the play-by-play of all games.

Currie also will be the M.C. throughout the season on The Dean Smith Show which will be televised each week on stations covering most of the state of North Carolina. The show is sponsored by The Coca Cola Bottling Company.

The Carmichael Auditorium press box always is filled to capacity for home games. The sports writers of the big North Carolina dailies are regular guests and always are welcome in Chapel Hill.

Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be secured by contacting Jack Williams, Sports Information Director. Requests are screened with care to insure a working press box. Children, wives and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the Basketball Writers of America.

PROSPECTUS: 1969-70

Riddled by the loss of five outstanding seniors, the North Carolina Tar Heels will be extremely hard-pressed to defend the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship which they have won for three straight years.

The Tar Heels do have one of the nation's premier players in All-America Charlie Scott, a 6-5 jumping jack who led the team to fourth place in the nation last season. But Charlie's chief playmates of last year are gone.

Among the stars who graduated were Bill Bunting, the 6-8 shooting and defensive whiz who was all-conference last season; Rusty Clark, the 6-10 center who had a brilliant three-year career; and Dick Grubar, the 6-4 playmaker and quarterback of the Tar Heels. Two other seniors, valuable reserves Joe Brown and Gerald Tuttle, also have graduated.

Coach Dean Smith, whose past three-year record is an amazing 81 wins and only 15 losses, says that because of the loss of these veterans he doesn't foresee a single area in which the Tar Heels can be improved.

"Certainly not in rebounding," he says, "without big men like Clark and Bunting. On offense, it'll be awfully hard to duplicate a team shooting percentage of 49.4 and we won't get as many second shots because of the lack of rebounding strength. Defensively, we'll again use a pressing man-for-man, but this can't be as effective with new men in the lineup."

Smith, however, does feel that Carolina will again have a good basketball team. "With tougher competition in the conference, we may be headed for a fight with Wake Forest and N.C. State for third place," Smith says. "South Carolina and Duke are clearly the preseason favorites."

The Tar Heel coach says that spots on the Carolina team will be wide open leading up to the first game. Lee Dedmon, 6-10 center from Baltimore, Md.; Eddie Fogler, 5-11 guard from Flushing, N.Y.; and Jim Delany, 5-11 guard from South Orange, N.J.; are the more experienced players returning with the sensational Scott. Other returning lettermen from last years championship team are 6-7 Dave Chadwick from Orlando, Fla.; 6-0 Dale Gipple from Burlington, N.C.; 6-8 Don Eggleston of Charlotte, N.C.; and 6-0 Richard Tuttle from London, Ky.

Scott and Fogler (right) with some campus lovelies (L-R) Cindy Simpkins of Wilmington, N.C., Debbie Patterson of Chapel Hill, N.C., Fay Hauser of Winston-Salem, N.C., and Wanda Baxter of Greensboro, N.C.

Scott averaged 22.3 last season and was a great all-around performer. He capped the year with a 40-point performance against Duke in the ACC Tournament championship game and then got 32 and a winning basket in the last second against Davidson in the Eastern Regional final.

Dedmon showed flashes of brilliance last year, but was not consistent. "With no proven big man to replace him, we'll count on Lee to give a more consistent performance," Smith says.

Fogler started most of Carolina's games last season in the backcourt. He is not a talented scorer, but he excels as a ball-handler and passer. Delany came on in reserve last season to play well and help the Tar Heels pull out several close contests.

Chadwick and Gipple will be given chances to start in the front and backcourt respectively. The strength of the center position will depend on the progress made by reserve holdover Don Eggleston and rising sophomore 6-9 Craig Corson.

Carolina had a talented freshman team last season and any of the other four starters in addition to Corson on that club could figure prominently in Tar Heel plans this season.

The other four freshmen are 6-4 Kim Huband of Wilmington, N.C.; 6-5 Bill Chamberlain of New York, N.Y.; 6-5 Dennis Wuycik of Ambridge, Pa.; and 6-2 Steve Previs of Bethel Park, Pa.

The Tar Heels have one big plus on their side heading into another season. Carolina has a great winning tradition, having swept three straight ACC crowns and an unprecedented three straight Eastern Regional Championships.

Charlie Scott

Height: 6-6 Weight: 175 Age: 22

Here's one of the most honored players in Carolina history . . . He made four all-America teams last season while leading the Tar Heels to fourth place in the nation . . . After two seasons, he already ranks as the school's ninth best scorer ever with 1,276 points . . . Averaged 22.3 last season and led the team in assists with 108 . . . Also did outstanding job as rebounder, ranking third on team . . . Capped 1969 season with 40 points against Duke in ACC championship game and got 32 against Davidson in Eastern Regional final, hitting the winning basket at buzzer . . . Was MVP in both ACC and Eastern Regional Tournaments and made all-tourney team at Nationals . . . A highlight of his great career came when he represented Carolina on the U.S. Olympic championship team in Mexico City in 1968 . . . Charlie is proudest of fact that he hit 50.3 percent of his shots last season . . . He's no gunner . . . A fine student, he has highest scholastic average of all the UNC basketballers . . . He may study law, or could play pro ball.

Carolina Basketball Tradition

The headlines tell the magic story:

North Carolina the first team in history to win three consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference regular season and tournament championships!

North Carolina the first team in history to sweep the Eastern Regional NCAA championship three years in a row.

North Carolina the only team besides national champion UCLA to be ranked in the nation's Top Ten each of the past three years. Carolina was either second, third or fourth each year, depending upon the poll.

Those are the latest in a long line of achievements which have made the Carolina Tar Heels one of the all-time big names of collegiate basketball.

In 58 years of cage competition, Tar Heel teams have won a whooping total of 936 games while losing only 404. Forty-nine of the school's 58 teams have had winning records. There has been only one team with a losing record in the past 15 years.

Twice—in 1924 and 1957—the Tar Heels won the national championship. Teams the past three years threatened to do it again, going to the National Semifinals in 1967 and 1969 and to the national finals in 1968.

Rarely ever in the history of athletics in this state have any teams created the excitement of the Tar Heel cagers of the past three years. Those great teams, coached by Dean Smith, compiled an overall record of 81 victories and only 15 defeats. In the rugged Atlantic Coast Conference wars, the three-year Carolina record is 45 wins and only six defeats. And perhaps even more amazing is the fact that the Tar Heels have beaten Big Four rivals—N.C. State, Wake Forest and Duke—23 times in the past 25 games.

Basketball always has been a boom sport at Carolina. And the crowds which turn out to see the Tar Heels play are proof of the popularity of the team.

Last season, the Tar Heels played before sellout crowds in 29 of their 32 games. One game which wasn't a sellout was the clash with St. John's in the Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden. The crowd that night was 18,476, less than a thousand short of capacity. The other two non-sellouts were the games against Georgia Tech in Atlanta and Maryland at College Park.

Every game at Carmichael Auditorium is a complete sellout long before the season begins. The beautiful gymnasium, called "Blue Heaven," seats 8,800 and is regarded as one of the most comfortable arenas to be found anywhere.

Carolina teams play big-name foes. The Tar Heels travel from coast to coast, meeting such perennial powers as UCLA, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Ohio State, Purdue, Utah, Princeton, Indiana, Villanova, St. John's, Duquesne and many more. But nowhere is the competition tougher than in Carolina's own Atlantic Coast Conference. The teams in that league are Wake Forest, North Carolina State, Duke, Clemson, South Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

It is interesting to note that in rating systems, the Carolina schedule has been judged one of the ten toughest in America each of the past three years.

The Tar Heels have had five all-America players in the last eight years. They are Doug Moe, current star of the Carolina Cougars of the ABA; Billy Cunningham, whiz of the Philadelphia 76ers; Bob Lewis, now of the San Francisco Warriors; Larry Miller, a member of the All-ABA rookie team with the Los Angeles Stars last season; and the current Tar Heel sensation, Charlie Scott.

Yes sir, basketball on The Hill is really big-time. The headlines from 58 years of competition tell the story.

UNC EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION

With another promising basketball team on hand at Carolina, interest in the University's Educational Foundation continues to increase.

The Foundation's Executive Secretary, Ernie Williamson, reports that the boom brought on by the Tar Heels' highly successful basketball program and revived football operation is definitely paying dividends.

"Things have been going very well in the last couple of years," says Williamson, "and we expect for the trend to continue."

He says a donation to the Educational Foundation is not specifically a donation to athletics. He contends that the high caliber young man who is awarded an athletic scholarship not only pays dividends on the playing field, but also is a great asset to the academic standards of the University.

Williamson feels that the overall bonus is in helping a worthy young man obtain a college education. Athletics, while important, come second.

Any donation to the Educational Foundation is welcome because the small donor of today is the Big Ram of romorrow. Membership in the Rams Club is confined to those who contribute $100 or more.

There are plenty of benefits to contributing to the Educational Foundation in addition to helping a scholar-athlete attend the University. A special room on the south wing of Kenan Field House serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families. The area is open two hours before a game and provides a lounge, picnic facilities and restrooms for those who come early. In the off season, other functions related to the Foundation are held here.

Foundation members receive priority on seat locations for football and basketball games. "A foundation membership is a badge of prestige and loyalty to the University," Williamson says. "Many of our finest members, however, did not necessarily attend the University of North Carolina. They heard about our program and felt it was worthy."

Williamson points out that a membership of any kind directly helps earnest young men achieve an education. All donations to the foundation are tax deductible.

Ernie Williamson

The Educational Foundation is growing in popularity and effectiveness. It takes a big man to keep it running smoothly and "Big Ernie" Williamson fills the bill as executive secretary.

Ernie was a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The Crewe, Va., native, played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and earned the reputation of being an outstanding tackle.

He was lured away to play professional football and performed with Los Angeles and Washington before being sidelined for good with a knee injury.

Ernie returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., as an assistant football coach for two years and head football coach three years.

He returned to Carolina in his present position in 1957.

Williamson is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va., and they have a son, Wayne, 21, and a daughter, Carole, 13.

ORIGIN AND INCORPORATION

Three loyal and athletic-minded University of North Carolina alumni met in the office of Secretary of State Thad Eure at Raleigh in December of 1938 and organized the Educational Foundation, Inc.

They were John Umstead Jr. of Chapel Hill, Max Abernathy of Raleigh and Benton Stacy of Reidsville.

A charter was drawn with these three men as the incorporators and submitted to the late O. Max Gardner, who had his law firm clear it with the Internal Revenue Department as a charitable organization. The charter was issued December 7, 1938.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Educational Foundation, Inc., is to raise funds for providing scholarships or grants-in-aid at the University to worthy and qualified high chool students with athletic ability.

The Educational Foundation, Inc., operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It has the blessing and good will of all the University administration and, in its unique field, occupies a status similar to that of the Business Foundation, The Medical Foundation, and other money-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University.

The full amount of all donations of Foundation members is used for scholarships and grants. The organization has no administrative expense.

WALTER RABB

Walter Rabb, a man of many talents, is in his ninth year as assistant athletic director at the University of North Carolina.

A longtime Tar Heel favorite, Rabb filled in for eight months last year as acting athletic director before the University appointed Homer Rice to the top post.

In addition to the administrative position, Rabb also serves as baseball coach. His Tar Heels last spring won their fourth Atlantic Coast Conference championship since 1960.

A native of Lenoir, N.C., Rabb graduated from North Carolina State University and attended graduate school at Carolina in 1940 and 1941. He joined the physical education staff here in 1942.

Rabb became assistant baseball coach under the late Bunn Hearn in 1949 and inherited the top job upon Hearn's death in 1957. Rabb actually directed most of the Tar Heels' baseball operations throughout the 1950s because of Hearn's failing health.

Since taking the reins as head man, Rabb has directed the Tar Heels to 346 wins and only 141 losses for a winning percentage of better than 72 percent.

Coach Rabb was a fine baseball player at North Carolina State and later played professionally. He was noted as a slick fielding shortstop.

A past president of the American Association of Baseball Coaches, Rabb also has been ACC Coach of the Year and in 1966 was named District Three NCAA Coach of the Year.

When he isn't busy in the Carolina athletic offices, Rabb usually can be found hunting or fishing. He's an expert at both sports.

He is married to the former Amy Warren of Snow Hill, N.C., and they have a son, Walter, and a daughter, Amy.

CHUCK ERICKSON

After serving for 16 years as Director of Athletics, Erickson resigned in May, 1968 and now plays an important role as Consultant and Advisor to the Department of Athletics.

Under Erickson's direction, Carolina enjoyed its finest hours in sports. Most of the athletic facilities here, which rank among the best in the nation, are the result of his planning and direction. Erickson personally raised the money from supporters and backers of the University for many of the building projects.

Friends of the University showed their appreciation to Chuck last May at a testimonial dinner in his honor on the Carolina campus. He was presented a new car and a check to pay off most of his home mortgage.

"It was a very big night for me," Erickson said later. "It showed again how loyal and great the Carolina fans are."

Mr. Erickson first became known to Tar Heel fans more than 45 years ago when he was a halfback under Chuck Collins. He had come to Chapel Hill from Oak Park, Ill.

He received a Bachelor of Science degree in engineering and ventured away for a time to enter business. But Erickson had grown to love Chapel Hill and he came back to stay in the early 1930s.

In his career at Carolina, he has done a little bit of everything. He's been a football coach; assistant graduate manager of athletics; fund raiser; scout; and recruiter.

Mr. Erickson is married to the former Mildred Wanell and they're proud of their daughter, Susan, and two lovely grandchildren.

THE GREATEST PLAYERS

From Cobb to Rosenbluth, from the "Blind Bomber" to the "Kangaroo Kid," from Dillon to Scott. The list of basketball greats at the University of North Carolina is an all but endless one.

And not only has Carolina produced great college players, but many of them have gone on to become professional standouts in either the National Basketball Association or the American Basketball Association.

During the past year, all-time baseball and football teams have been picked by sportswriters, fans, and coaches. Selecting an all-time Carolina basketball team, however, would be virtually an impossibility. So many great players have worn the Carolina blue and white, no one could begin to decide who the five best players in Tar Heel history are.

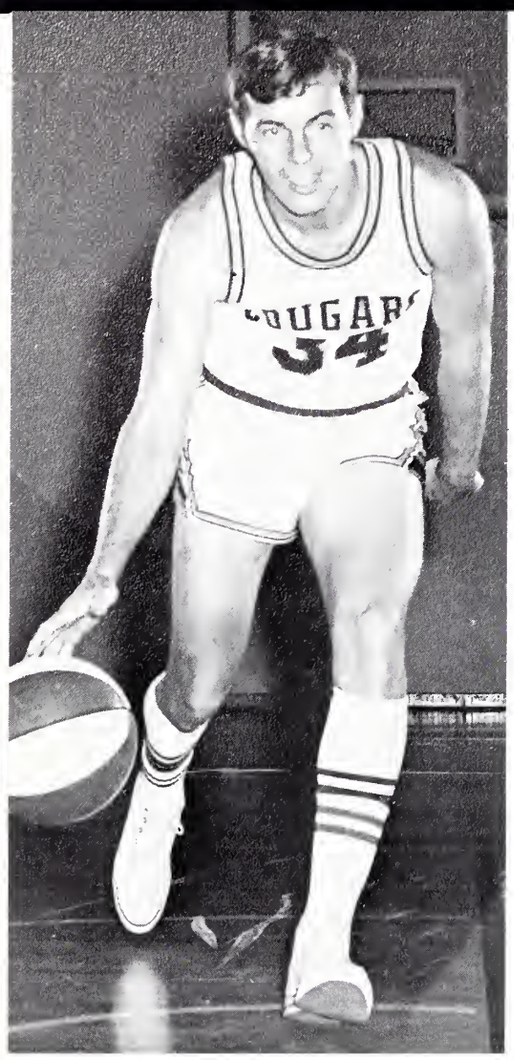
Basketball first became a varsity sport at UNC in 1911 and it took only 13 years for Carolina to win a national championship. The 1924 Tar Heels posted a 23-0 record and were voted the finest team in the land.

Jack Cobb, a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame, Cartwright Carmichael, and Monk McDonald were the key men on that team and are still talked about when the older natives of Chapel Hill get together to reminisce about days gone by in the village.

In those days the game was completely different from the one that is played today. It was much slower and more methodical. However, old-timers claim Cobb, Carmichael, and McDonald were superb athletes and would be just as good today as back then.

While Carolina did not have an All-American star like Cobb or Carmichael in the 1930's, the Tar Heels did have some outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, and Tom Alexander made the All-Southern Conference team during that decade.

Lennie Rosenbluth



Doug Moe (left) of the Carolina Cougars, Dick Grubar of the Indiana Pacers, and Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers.

One of the great legends in sports grew on the UNC campus in the early 1940's–the story of George Glamack, the "Blind Bomber." Glamack's eyesight was terrible; he could barely see the basket while right under it.

However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot, which he tossed with either hand and with great accuracy, and was an All-American in 1940 and 1941. He was named Helms Player of the Year in 1941 and is in the Hall of Fame.

All-American John "Hook" Dillon was the star of the 1946 Carolina team which finished second in the nation to Oklahoma A&M. However, he had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Jim White, Bob Paxton, and Bones McKinney, later a successful college coach at Wake Forest and now the coach of the Carolina Cougars of the ABA.

Eleven years later the Tar Heels again went to the NCAA championships, but this time won the title. All-American Lennie Rosenbluth was the big man on that club which went 32-0. Rosenbluth was the College Player of the Year. He still is the all-time leading scorer in UNC history.

Rosenbluth was not a one-man team, however. The Tar Heels had a well-balanced squad. Other starters on that team were Pete Brennan, Bob Cunningham, Tommy Kearns, and Joe Quigg. Danny Lotz was the valuable sixth man.

It was Quigg's two free throws with six seconds left in the third overtime of the championship game which lifted the Tar Heels to the national title, 53-52, over Wilt Chamberlain and his Kansas teammates.

Some of the finest players in UNC's history walked the Chapel Hill campus in the 1960's. Lee Shaffer, a '60 graduate, ranks as one of the greatest scorers ever at Carolina. He later was an all-star performer in the NBA with the Syracuse Nationals.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for Carolina in the early part of the decade. Larese was one of the greatest free-throw shooters in the college game, played professionally, and now coaches the New York Nets of the ABA.

Moe was an All-American in 1961 and was the top draft choice of the NBA Chicago Bulls. Instead of signing with the Bulls, however, he played in the Italian AAU league and eventually joined the New Orleans Bucs of the ABA. Moe has been an all-pro since the league's inception and now is starring for the Carolina Cougars.

Like Moe, Larry Brown is another former Tar Heel who is a super-star in the ABA. Before joining the pros, Brown played AAU basketball and was on the victorious 1964 U.S. Olympic basketball team. Although only 5-10, Brown has been a standout in the ABA and is currently playing with the Washington Caps.

The "Kangaroo Kid," Billy Cunningham, is still another UNC product who has become a professional great. Cunningham was an All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection in 1963, 1964, and 1965. In his senior year he was an All-American. Cunningham is now an all-star forward for the NBA's Philadelphia 76ers.

For each of the past three seasons, Carolina has gone to the National Championships. The men who have played on these teams certainly rank among UNC's best ever. Bob Lewis, a 1967 graduate, starred for the first of those teams. Lewis was a sensational outside shooter and once scored 49 points in a game—a school record. Lewis now plays for the San Francisco Warriors of the NBA.

Larry Miller, a first team All-America his senior year, played on the first two of those teams. He has won more honors than any Tar Heel in history and twice was named ACC Player of the Year. Miller, who may have been the most exciting player ever to perform at UNC, now plays for the ABA's Los Angeles Stars.

Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar, and Rusty Clark were starters on all three of those clubs. Bunting had a brilliant senior year and now is with the Carolina Cougars.

Grubar, a flashy guard who now is an Indianapolis Pacer in the ABA, may have been the most popular athlete in Carolina history. He always was at his best in the clutch. Clark, a 6-10 center, was felt by many to be the key man on those teams and always seemed to play especially well when faced with a formidable opponent.

Even today there is a player on the Carolina team who ranks among the greatest of all time—Charlie Scott. Scott starred for the victorious 1968 U.S. Olympic team, made several All-America teams last year, and is a consensus pick for All-America honors this year.

Yes, the list of Tar Heel greats is a long one. And the honor roll is certain to continue growing as long as the game is played in Chapel Hill.

Florida State

Saturday, December 13 at Greensboro

Outlook Florida State figures to have its strongest basketball team in history this season. Leading the returnees is All-America center candidate Dave Cowens, sixth in the country last year in rebounding with a 17.5 average. He also averaged 20.3 points. Another return is junior guard Skip Young, with a 15 point average last year. Three newcomers have a good chance to break in the starting lineup. They include sophomores Ron Harris and Rowland Garrett along with junior college transfer Vernell Ellzy. Garrett averaged 25.7 points and 20.2 rebounds as a freshman.

Outlook Tulane will field a young team this winter, with just two starters returning. John Sutter, 6-8 cornerman, was last year's third-highest scorer with an 11-7 average as a sophomore. Harold Sylvester, who also started as a sophomore, led the team in rebounding last season and scored 10.7 points per game. Sylvester is a 6-6 post man in Tulane's V offense. Other experienced players returning are Greg Robers, 6-7 forward; Ned Reese, 6-0 guard; Dennis Riddle, 6-7 center; and Mike Henry, 5-10 guard. Mike Billingsley, 6-0 redshirt sophomore, should fit into guard picture. Eight seniors have graduated, including three who started for three seasons, leaving large gaps to fill. In all probability, Tulane will continue to be a high scoring outfit (averaged 88.2 pts. per game last year) and will field a team with a good shooting eye (hit 46.9 per cent as a team). The schedule is a tough one, with no less than five of last year's NCAA tourney teams included—North Carolina, Miami of Ohio, Drake, Marquette, and Notre Dame.

Outlook Improving Rice in a rebuilding program has had a better record each season under Don Knodel, in fourth year with Owls after being an aide at cage power Vanderbilt. 8 lettermen return after a first division finish (tie for fourth), and the Owls could be a Southwest Conference title threat. Sharpshooter 6-1 forward-guard Tom Myer is top scoring returnee, while 6-8 Steve Wendel at center, 6-6 forward Jim Naples among better Owls, along with 6-2 guard Gary Reist. Top sophs include 6-6 Ted Melady, all-SWC frosh last winter.

Outlook Bob Harrison feels his second Harvard team doesn't figure to be an Ivy contender, but it could be a troublemaker. Harrison hopes to improve on last year's 7-18 mark and will bank on veterans, Ernest Hardy, Dale Dover and Mike Janczewski for experience. Sophomore Matt Bozek could develop into a floor leader while newcomers Brian Newmark, Wayne Clapp, and Bill Newkirk provide depth up front. The Crimson will have to improve at the foul line and cut down on personal fouls if it hopes to move towards the top of the League.

Outlook "I've never been more anxious to start a season than what I am this year. Reason, of course, is the belief that we're going to have a good year. Although we are going to miss people like Dickie Garrett, Chuck Benson and Willie Griffin, I can't help but feel this will be a good club despite its lack of experience among regulars. Our shooting should definitely be better; our speed and quickness is above average; our ball-handling should be improved and will probably be above average; our depth is so good that it could be a problem, if that's possible. Our weakness, and it could be a big one, will be our inability of getting the ball off the boards due to our lack of size. If one or two of our young people come through, however, even this might shape up."

Outlook Last season, Bowling Green State University had to settle for a 9-15 record on the basketball court as first-year coach Bob Conibear put together a squad of junior college transfers and inexperienced sophomores.

This year, things will be better for the Falcons if, for no other reason, than the inexperienced players now will have one good year of work under their belts.

Four of last season's top six scorers, center Jim Connally, forwards Dan McLemore and Jim Penix plus guard Rich Walker, are back this year and they could all find themselves in the starting lineup.

Conibear can't expect too much help from the freshman squad but forward Lee Henson, who averaged 23.1 points a game last year, has already proven that he might be good enough to break into the starting five.

Outlook The 1969 ACC Coach of the Year, Frank McGuire, and the ACC Player of the Year, All-America guard John Roche, along with a strong supporting case, make the Fighting Gamecocks strong contenders in 1969-70. In addition to Roche, a 23.6 scorer, USC features Tom Owens, a 6-10 rebounding forward whose 13.0 average led the ACC, along with returning starters John Ribock, 6-8, and hustling 6-2 Bobby Cremins. Outlook "We'll be a better team this season than last year. The addition of 6-9 Paul Coder and 6-5 Ed Leftwich, both sophomores, will increase our rebounding strength and, with our returning talent in Vann Williford and Rick Anheuser and others back from last year, enable us to simplify our offense. Outlook There is a good possibility that Coach Bobby Roberts and his Clemson basketball team will experience some more rocky roads during the 1969-70 season, but look for the Tigers' cage stock to soar some the following year.

All that remains of the '66-'67 freshman team is Butch Zatezalo, who has led the Atlantic Conference in scoring the past two seasons, and reserve guard Mike Faer. Roberts will have one 6-7 player (freshman Greg Latin), two at 6-6 (juniors Dickie Foster and Pete Weddell) and one at 6-5 (Paul Holzshu). The Tigers will again be the shortest team in the toughest basketball conference in the nation.

The scoring load will again be given to Zatezalo, who upped a 23.0 sophomore average to 25.8 this past season. But Zatezalo will have two double-figured scorers returning with him next fall, whereas he only had Mahaffey in the most recent campaign.

Wake Forest

Saturday, January 17 at Chapel Hill
Thursday, February 5 at Winston-Salem

Outlook With only starting guard Jerry Montgomery and little-used reserve Jay Randall missing from last year's squad, the outlook for the 1969-70 Wake Forest basketball season looks pretty good.

"Our two sophomore starters of last year—All-ACC guard Charlie Davis and center Gil McGregor—each have a year of experience under their belt, and they should be ready for a banner season," Coach Jack McCloskey said.

Davis paced the Deacons to an 18-9 record last year, the best in three years for McCloskey. Davis, who set a new school mark with 51 points in a single game, finished as the fourth leading scorer in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 22.8 average, and was fifth in the nation in free throw percentage with an .882 mark.

McGregor, a strong 6-7 performer, had a 12.6 scoring average and a 12.0 rebound mark while forward Dickie Walker finished with a 12.7 scoring figure. Davis, McGregor and Walker were the only members of the team to see action in all 27 games.

Norwood Todmann (6-3), Neil Pastushok (6-4) and Dan Ackley (6-8) alternated at the fifth starting position last year, and will likely be battling for the same spot again this season. Larry Habegger, a 6-7 forward, will also be in the running for a starting spot.

Outlook After winning three Southern Conference titles at Davidson and having his teams ranked in the top ten four of the past six years, Lefty Driesell faces a rebuilding project at Maryland. Will Hetzel, who scored an average of 23.3 per game last year, returns for his senior year, bidding to become Maryland's all-time scoring leader. Outlook Hopes of improving Tech's 12-13 record of a year ago pivot around 6-9½ junior center Rich Yunkus, an all-star candidate already rated the best big man in Jacket history. The soft-shooting Yunkus, a consensus prep all-America from Benton, Ill., set four Tech records as a sophomore, including season scoring average, 24.1. The return of three other starters, forward Bob Seemer (13.2) and guards Jim Thorne (6.4) and John Veryzer (5.1), plus lettermen Bill Mayer, Howard Thompson, Tommy Wilson and Rich Wright give coach Whack Hyder experience and depth.

The University of North Carolina freshmen basketball team will be handicapped this season by lack of depth and height—and the usual ambitious schedule.

But Coach Bill Guthridge reports that the team will get plenty of hard work and expects enthusiasm to be high as the squad pursues dual goals of "preparing for varsity competition, learning the North Carolina philosophy of offense and defense, and secondly, winning as many games as possible."

"We have a long way to go to get ready for games with Big Four opponents," he said. "We only have two players on scholarship and of course they will be counted on for leadership."

George Karl and Donn Johnston are the boys on scholarship. Karl, a 6-2 guard, hails from Penn Hills, Pa., and Johnston, a 6-8 center, is from Jamestown, N.Y.

Big Four rival Duke appears on the schedule three times, with two of the games in Chapel Hill, while the Tar Babies also meet Wake Forest and N.C. State in a pair of contests.

Carolina has won the Big Four freshman championship two straight years under the coaching of Guthridge.

A Tribute

To Five Who Graduated

Joe Brown

Bill Bunting

Rusty Clark

Dick Grubar

Gerald Tuttle

This edition of the 1969-70 Carolina Basketball Blue Book is proudly dedicated to five who wore the Blue and White with sterling athletic ability and great personal distinction, helping to carry the Tar Heels to three straight Atlantic Coast Conference and Eastern Regional NCAA championships.

Few are apt to forget Dick Grubar, Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Joe Brown, and Gerald Tuttle. For their superb play on the court and their distinction as representatives of the University have been unsurpassed.

Two of the five are now playing professional basketball: Grubar with Indiana and Bunting with the Carolina Cougars. Clark is a student in the UNC Medical School, Brown is in the banking business in Raleigh, and Tuttle is a Navy ensign.

We salute these five Carolina Gentlemen.
